SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wise Booker, of Hampton, Va., announce the engagement of their second daughter, Miss Mary Willis Booker, to William Lane Kelly, Jr., of Norfolk.

The announcement of Miss Booker's engagement and approaching wedding in November will be of keen interest in Eastern Virginia. Miss Booker is the granddaughter of the chivalrous and courtly old Virginia gentlemen, the late Judge Baker P. Lee and Major George Booker, of Sherwood, Elizabeth City county.

Inheriting from her mother the personal beauty and charm of manner proverbial in the Lee family, Miss Booker has been a leading beauty and belle in Tidewater since her debut four years ago.

Mr. Kelly, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lane Kelly, is prominent in social and business circles of Norfolk.

Sutherland-McGehee. At 6:30 yesterday evening in the spacious parlors of the residence of her sister, Mrs. H. B. Sanford, at 101 East Main Street, was celebrated the marriage of Miss Pattie Estelle McGehee to Professor LeRoy Ladd Sutherland.

The bride, in a magnificent gown of liberty satin elaborately embroidered with trimmings of real lace, entered on the arm of her father, J. C. McGehee, by whom she was given away.

Her only attendant, Miss Jeannette Douglas Baird, as maid of honor, wore a gown of pink liberty silk, carrying a basket bouquet of Killarney roses.

Proceeding the bride and groom, were Mrs. Alexander L. Bondurant, of Norfolk, and Francis McGehee, nephews of the bride. In suits of pure white they bore the ribbons which formed an aisle. The bride, carrying a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley, her veil being held by a wreath of lilies of the valley, was met at the altar by the groom, attended by his brother, Wellford T. Sutherland, as best man. The ceremony was performed by Dr. W. W. Landrum, formerly pastor of the Second Baptist Church, this city, now of Louisville, Ky.

Dr. W. H. O. McGehee, brother of the bride, played the wedding march from "Lohengrin." During the ceremony he played the soft strains of "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms." After the marriage the bridal couple received the hearty congratulations of their numerous friends, during an informal reception. The cutting of the cake and the search for the symbols afforded much pleasure to the guests. The parlors and large reception hall were banked in palms and ferns, white and pink roses lending an added charm to the scene. The rooms, covered in white, with their evergreen decorations, afforded a splendid background for the numerous and handsome gifts. After the bride had changed her bridal robe for a stylish traveling suit of tan homespun, with hat and gloves to match, the young couple left at 8:20 for a trip through New York State and Canada. They will return to this city for a week before leaving for their future home in Staunton, where the groom is professor of chemistry in Staunton Military Academy.

A Golden Wedding. Last Monday afternoon, August 9, a large company assembled at "Variety Shade," in Buckingham county, to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander J. Bondurant. The home was fifty and beautifully decorated with goldenrod. With the bride and groom of fifty years were their children and children's children, coming from distant parts of the state and foreign shores, thronged with relatives and friends.

Of those who saw Mr. and Mrs. Bondurant married fifty years ago were Miss Harriet Morrison, sister of the bride; Dr. Thomas Lee Bondurant, brother of the groom; and their friend, Rev. James P. Smith. After the entrance of the bride party, with the happy troop of grandchildren, to the music of the wedding march, a few verses of Scripture were read, a poem, "The Golden Harvest," by Miss Meares, of Natchez, was recited by her sister, Mrs. Alexander L. Bondurant, of Oxford, Miss., and Dr. Smith gave some reminiscences of the wedding in 1859 at Bellevue, in Rockbridge county.

Among the guests at that noonday wedding was Major T. J. Jackson, whom the world honors now as Stonewall Jackson. It was regretted that Mrs. Jackson, residing in Charlotte, N. C., could not be present, as she was fifty years ago.

There were many expressions of affectionate congratulations from the host of friends of the sons and daughters of Mr. Bondurant were Prof. Alexander L. Bondurant, of the University of Mississippi; Samuel Bondurant, of Buckingham; Mrs. W. Harrison, of Birmingham; Mrs. Professor Hays, of Auburn, Ala.; and Miss Fannie Bondurant, of Variety Shade.

The house was thronged with kinsmen and friends—Halls, Mosleys, Eells and many others.
